SUBJECT:

State Draft Report on H.R. 1082
Omnibus Intelligence and Security Improvement Act

1. Following are comments on the State Department draft report on H.R. 1082.

2. State's comment on Title IV pinpoints the primary weakness - it doesn't cover contractors. The remainder of the State comment, however, seems calculated to stall and prevent action. "Further study" is a codeword for "let's don't." The suggestion to strengthen administrative controls and take disciplinary action would certainly be strengthened by a legislative underpinning. It has not been effective without such support, and in fact, simply isn't likely to happen. Two NSDDs and a Presidential letter have achieved no perceptible change. Legislation is needed.

3. State's comments on Title V seem to be well stated and appropriate.
